The course is very interesting and helped me learn more about law and econ.

Great Professor, graded every assignment fairly. The only thing I would have liked was that he announced exam dates on the syllabus to prepare for the midterm in advance.

This course was a great link between economics and the legal field. It was really interesting to see economic models applied in a different way. The class was a refreshing change from other econ classes I've taken!

The subject is not the most interesting to me, but I was able to learn a bit.

The course is a topics course, so we are practicing a skill and applying it to several topics within econ/law. It is well laid out.

The attendance taking was inconsistent and hurt my grade a lot even though i only missed one class.

the topics are interesting

Didn't like how he structured class

Really going in depth about a topic

Tailored and clear approach to the subject matter.

This course is very interesting for anyone interested in the intersection between government/law and economics (saying this as a government/economics double major). I enjoyed the content and found it to be very practical knowledge for everyday life.

Professor He is very accessible and very passionate. I loved his encouraging lectures and his encouragement of students to speak up and participate, even when they were wrong.

It was clear that Professor He has a lot of respect and care for his students. He was constantly checking in to make sure we were following what was going on and gave great explanations. Amazing teaching!

Professor He is very passionate about the subject.

Professor He is very enthusiastic and teaches the material very well. Homeworks and exams matched up with the material taught in class, which is excellent.

Sometimes hard to follow the professor delivers the lecture very deliberately, everything was clearly explained

Good visuals as well

Clear teaching, enjoyed taking the class.

Professor He makes sure that every single person understands the content he is teaching during each lecture. He explains things slowly and methodically in a way that is very helpful and respectful for a 200 level economics class. He is also very kind and understanding o any issues or questions students may have.
